Cause Camp conference celebrates 22 years of nonprofit education and networking

GRAND RAPIDS, MI – Now in its 22nd year, Cause Camp is a top-rated nonprofit conference that provides actionable education on the most requested topics including fundraising, marketing, board relations, and more. Cause Camp is organized by Nonprofit Hub, a Michigan nonprofit corporation dedicated to inspiring nonprofit excellence. The hybrid event will take place in person on September 14th and 15th, 2023, in Sandusky, OH followed by an official virtual watch party on October 19th-20th, 2023.

The two-day conference encompasses the theme of lessons in momentum, characteristic of the roller coaster of nonprofit life. Every nonprofit needs to navigate twists and turns and overcome the highs and lows of propelling their mission forward. Cause Camp's venue, Sawmill Creek Resort and Convention Center, is appropriately located less than 15 minutes from Cedar Point Amusement Park where attendees can experience the thrill of 18-world class roller coasters and countless attractions at the ultimate destination for fun.

"Cause Camp is a nonprofit legacy. It's a place where the nonprofit professional, new and seasoned, disconnects from all of the monotony of daily tasks and reconnects with the novelty of a shared experience in a getaway destination", Delaney Mullennix, Executive Director of Nonprofit Hub, continues, "My biggest takeaway? Cause Camp was one of the greatest relationship builders of my professional career".

The renown conference will feature speakers with in-depth knowledge of the nonprofit sector. Speakers include Jacob Brown, known for his motivational talks on taking failure and turn it into fuel, Kim Fuller, CEO of Phil, Inc. who is known to be big-hearted and sunny about philanthropic communications and positive change , and Andrew Davis, known for his role in

Cause Camp 2023 will provide ample time for attendees to network with their nonprofit peers from across the nation and experience the watch party with dedicated time for live Q&A with every speaker. There are opportunities for the campers to attend social events, learn and interact with exhibitors, and win prizes all conference long.

Cause Camp was started in 2001 by the Lincoln chapter of the American Marketing Association as a community project where they presented a half-day seminar, "Marketing 101", to nonprofit groups throughout the state. Cause Camp became one of the most reputable nonprofit conferences in the U.S., being named a "must attend" event for nonprofits by Forbes in 2018.

About Nonprofit Hub: Nonprofit Hub is an online educational collective dedicated to giving nonprofit professionals everything they need to better their careers, organizations, and communities. For more information visit nonprofithub.org.
